Finally, We are seeing a rise in calls now about people breaching the guidelines as people get frustrated at seeing others flout the rules that they are trying so hard to adhere to.

Please remember we are still in a 'lockdown' period and whilst many businesses are opening up again and more people are going back to work, it is still important to stick to the guidelines in place to ensure that we can continue to control the virus and move forward in an effort to overcome the pandemic. The guidelines themselves are constantly changing and the most up to date information can be found on the www.gov.uk website.
